

The changing face of Grump2

With the 2007-2008 season upon us, the McKern Racing team in association with the PAC Performance team, have been busy making some changes to the National Recording holding RX2, Grump2.

Already setting a precedence for standard rear ended cars, Grump2 has undergone some changes which will hopefully allow the car to perform to its, up until now, unused potential. Sporting a new 33.5 inch ladder bar setup, the Grump looks set to attack the new season with a fresh new vigor. But the ladder bar is not the only thing that the team has changed...for the first time in two decades, Grump2 has changed colours...moving away from the traditional Barbados Lime Green to a modern "House of Kolor" Lime Green with airbrushing and a two tone charcoal paint job from Custom Bodyworks.

Seeing is believing and the team are excited to release the updated McKern Racing beast on the track to take on the world's quickest untubbed sedans. Look out for the new and improved Grump2 and keep up to date with appearances at:
